

Animal Wisdom

Indigenous cultures throughout the world believe that the natural world contains special signs, meaning, and wisdom for humans. While there are many interpretations, the following is a brief summary of what some animals signify.

Alligator primal energies of birth, motherhood, and initiation

Ant strength, endurance, efficiency, persistence, productivity, courage, and community

Badger aggressiveness, persistence, and power of true strength

Bat  blood, rebirth, and navigation—teaches one to “see” with perceptions other than the eye

Bear introspection, mystery, and strength— to seek within oneself to find answers; often seen in the “cave of origins” in the dream life

Beaver cooperation, alteration, building, shaping security, contentment, industry, and balance; the beaver is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Bee  service, gathering, and community

Bird  all birds represent pieces of the fundamental principles of unity, freedom, community, and soul flight

Black panther introspection, seeking within oneself, and to hold power, yet be unseen

Brown bear caution, bravery, fairness, organization, curiosity, and leadership

Buffalo  prayer, abundance, practical wisdom, healing, and good fortune; the buffalo is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Butterfly transformation, courage to change, balance, evolution, and how to experience joy

Cheetah helps one to focus on goals and to find the most direct way of achieving them

Chimpanzee harmony, engaging in the simple ways of life that create joy

Cougar initiative, speed, grace, territoriality, mystery, balanced leadership, cunning, and wit

Coyote this trickster reminds one to laugh at oneself and enforces karmic law; the coyote is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Crane longevity, creation through focus, and expression of feminine energies

Crow council, intuitive knowledge of universal sacred law, and assertiveness. The crow is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Deer gentleness, sensitivity, grace, alertness, creativity, and heart-spirit connection. The deer is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Dolphin breath of life, harmony with oneself, surroundings, and others, and deep breathing

Dove feminine energies of peace, maternity, prophecy, and promise of future

Dragon transformation, ritual, magic, related to the snake; all dragons influence subconscious protection and healing through giving vitality—especially during sickness—and confronting obstacles. There are four kinds of dragons:

Fire dragon enthusiasm and courage

ANIMAL WISDOM, CONTINUED

Air dragon inspiration and insight

Earth dragon grounding power and self-potential

Water dragon inner depth and compassion

Eagle limitless, freedom, fearlessness, transcendence, and clarity of vision.

Elephant commitment, mind power, physical strength, dedication, and overcoming obstacles

Elk stamina; teaches one the best use of one's energy and to follow through until the end

Falcon accuracy, rapid progress, and restraint

Fox camouflage, stealth, observation, anticipate behavior in advance. cleverness, adaptability

Frog cleanses the negative forces away and replenishes the soul with positive force; leaping happily; the frog teaches positive willpower and generates life force

Giraffe teaches one to view one's life in a way that is both grounded and expansive

Gorilla a confirmation that our endeavors are solid and steady; teaches the importance of staying grounded in all situations and to handle our responsibilities through the use of power of leadership rather than the abuse of physical strength upon the weak

Grizzly bear stability, tenacity, healing, introspection, maturity, and leadership; represents raw self-power—both destructive and constructive—and the necessity of self-control; the grizzly bear is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Hawk teaches one to be observant and to pay attention to what may be overlooked; the messenger from the dream life

Hippopotamus teaches one to ground oneself in order to face and dissolve emotional issues

Horse inner power, freedom, and safe movement

Jackal trickster and stealer of fire; teaches one to try to see humor and that laughter is one of the spices of life

Lion teaches one to be strong and courageous even in the midst of trouble

Lizard dreaming; the lizard teaches one the importance of respecting and remembering dreams

Moose self-esteem, practical wisdom, joy of accomplishment, strength, spontaneity, and unpredictability

Mountain lion leadership, standing firm in power; the lion gives direction and aid when needed

Ostrich becoming grounded

Otter woman medicine, healing, sensuality, and letting loose of boundaries and limits

Owl old wisdom, mystery and vision, magic, omens, insight, and vision in the night

Peacock resurrection, wise vision, and watchfulness

Porcupine self-protection, memory, security, innocence, and humility

Quail group nourishment and protection, protectiveness, and group harmony

Rabbit fear; the rabbit teaches self-confidence and how to fears; while what one fears persists, the rabbit teaches one to let it go; while predators are nearby, the rabbit teaches one not to let fear guide one into the open

Raccoon teaches how to mask, disguise, and transform oneself, putting asleep the part of oneself that is not needed and awakening the aspect of oneself that is needed; the raccoon represents the magic of dexterity and disguise, strategy from →

ANIMAL WISDOM, CONTINUED

afar, and moving amongst shadows to achieve the attainment of desires; the raccoon is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Salmon trust, strength, determination, willpower, loyalty, and tradition. The salmon is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Seal  tapping the sub-conscious; the seal reminds one how to swim in one's inner being for answers

Skunk self-respect, reputation, protection, respect, and secrecy; the skunk represents the original "walk your talk"

Snake  transmutation, rebirth, and the sacred spiral

Snow goose beauty, tradition, transmission, reception, ceremony, and gregariousness

Spider  weaving, hunting, creativity, balance, interconnectivity, and industry

Tiger  stress and courage, being bold in the face of danger, caution, appropriate timing, and stealth

Tortoise  ancient wisdom, experience, patience, and endurance

Turtle mother earth, longevity, and creativity; the turtle is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Whale record keeper; the whale teaches one to listen within and feel the heartbeat of the universe

White buffalo spirituality, selflessness, generosity, hope, and ancient wisdom

Woodchuck (groundhog) gathering, preparation, burrowing into the earth, and the power of cycle; the woodchuck is one of a few life totems once acquired, it travels with one for life, often in the presence of other totems

Wolf eliminating weakness, commitment, family loyalty, and teaching skill

Woodpecker the power of rhythm and determination; stimulating new rhythms

Zebra power, alertness, and community